Dear Paul:

The chapter on Christians and their relationship to civil authority which is included in The Entrusted Life is a very able piece of work. Stylistically, logically, and Biblically it is praiseworthy and deserving of publication in English. You have dealt with the whole gamut of the issues which make this a pivotal area of theology and ethics. I cannot think of any issue which you have failed to discuss. I commend you for the thoroughness, clarity, Biblicism, and thoughtfulness of your study.

There are, to be sure, points where evangelical scholars will disagree with you—I among them. But they in no wise diminish the value and cogency of your solid, scriptural scholarship.

With every good wish for God's continued blessing on your life and ministry, I am

Cordially, in Christ,

Vernon Grounds
